HERBERT MORRISON ON GAS

"Our enemy has declared he will not use the gas weapon, but his word commands no confidence, neither here nor in any quarter of the free world. Therefore, carry your gas mask, always, at all times and in all places. Have it at hand, night and day. Make specially sure it is in good order and repair. Practise putting it on without fumbling, your life may depend on your putting it on in a matter of seconds. Get thoroughly accustomed to wearing it, see that every member of your household does all these things. This is an urgent task of war. I have told you what to do and why, you must now do your part".
