THEIR MAJESTIES TOUR.

The King and Queen complete their tour among troops in the Southern Command, crossing a muddy field on duck boards to see gun crews and trench mortar squads demonstrating their almost uncanny marksmanship. Escorting Their Majesties is General Alexander, G.O.C. Southern Command.

Various types of guns make the display quite a noisy one and the Queen is first to admit it.

An anti-tank gun picks an argument with a distant target just to show that everything's going with a bang. Their Majesties are always ready to chat with the men behind the guns - marksmen who make the missile go round and around - and come out here.
