

THE MAN OF THE MOMENT.

SHORTLY

~~A matter of hours~~ after Bristol received its eleventh ~~air raid~~ raid, Mr. Churchill visits the battle-scarred City. Few ~~Statesmen~~ Statesmen have won such universal admiration as Britain's Prime Minister. We recall the words of Mr. Roosevelt.

At Bristol University, Mr. Churchill as Chancellor, confers ^{LAW} ~~honorary~~ degrees on the American Ambassador, Mr. Winant, and the Australian Premier, Mr. Menzies.

In glowing words the Prime Minister extols the people of our nation, who's spirit has emblazoned the noblest pages in history.

And it was to the bombed people of Bristol that Mr. Churchill have his stirring pledge: "Well give it to them back". Later he electrifies Cardiff and Swansea with his cheerful personality. Originally intended to be a secret visit, it becomes a triumphal tour. The people of South Wales swam round their "Winnie", cheering him to the echo. Almost lost in the midst of his admirers, no film star has received such a tumultuous reception.
