AFTER THE BATTLE

Our Navy's brilliant victory over the Italian Fleet in the battle of Cape Matapan brought us yet more prisoners (even a newsreel Editor hardly knows what to do with them.) Shaking ourselves free from their depressing appearance, we watch with pride the return of our victorious ships to Alexandria.

Fifteen inch shells from Warspite did grand work in the battle. They sent the Uop cruisers "Fiume" to the bottom and helped the "Zara" on her way to "Davy Jones' Locker. With the "Pola", also sunk, went the heaviest ships of the Italian Cruiser Fleet, and our navy lost NOT A MAN - NOT A SHIP and NOT EVEN A SQUARE INCH OF PAINT.

Ladies and Gentlemen, we take the utmost pride in again presenting a portrait of the victor of Cape Matapan - ADMIRAL SIR ANDREW CUNNINGHAM.
