

BRITISH MODELS IN RIO.

41-40

We newsreel people do get about, don't we? Now we're in Rio de Janeiro watching a bevy of British mannequins displaying the latest London modes designed exclusively for South America.

Featuring everything from sports attire to street clothing - and dinner gowns, our girls fairly dazzle Brazil's smart set with their sensational creations (It's just exactly right, Moddoo).

They've brought along some pretty snappy chapeaux, too. Between displays, the girls play on the famous Copacaban Beach. After war-time London it's like heaven to the girls, and you can't blame them for enjoying themselves while showing that London is now the 'last word' for fashions.
