W.A.A.F'S AT WORK

Girls in the Women's Auxiliary Air Force are being called upon to handle many of the responsible jobs which were previously entrusted only to R.A.F. Mechanics and Ground Staff. The refuelling of planes is but one of the duties which the W.A.A.F are capably handling. Helping a pilot on with his harness and adjusting his safety belt, to say nothing of starting the plane, is all rather like sending hubby away to catch the 8.15.

And the driving of Staff Cars, and generally acting as Chaffeures comes easy to them. If this war goes on much longer, the girls will be running the thing.
