WORLD'S TINIEST HIPPO

If you didn't know what this was, you would think it wasn't. But believe it or not, it is the world's smallest Hippo, just arrived in New York. He's two months old, weighs twenty pounds, and is the apple of his mother's eye. Yes, and he's a daily dipper, takes to water even quicker than a schoolboy. What he likes best of all is to have his breakfast in his bath and can't he knock it back. This little whisp of twenty pounds may soon grow into a large lump of Hippo weighing as much as four tons.
