OPEN GOLF IN U.S.A.

Relax for a while and come round the Long Island Golf Course for some stylish play in the American Open Championship. Lawson Little, the holder, gets away followed by veteran Gene Saracens who is still giving the youngsters a run for their money. Paul Runyon, the luckiest guy in golf, completes the big three. If you want to pick up a few points watch how the champs go to work with that little extra something the others haven't got. When it comes to putting, Runyon leaves you gaping. It's black magic. Away go the gallery, hoofing it out with the big shots. Halfway down a sandpit is Gene Saracens lifting a neat one out of a bunker. Here's Paul Runyon again sizing up a long putt with all the self assurance in the world, watch him. Goal with a capital G.
