

INDIAN TROOPS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Durban honours Indian Fighting men from the North African theatres of war...
The Mayor garlands the officers in traditional Indian style as he welcomes them on behalf of the city.

The troops are not part of the regular army, but State troops, (raised and maintained by the Ruler of Rampur) who have come to the Union guarding Italian Colonial Prisoners. Their services were offered to the Imperial Government at the outbreak of hostilities, and they have proved, and are proving, themselves equal to the finest soldiers India has produced. The Italians could confirm this.