THE KING WITH THE NAVY.

Who dares doubt that Britannia rules the waves, when, in the middle of the biggest war of all time, the King of Britain and the British Dominions and Emperor of India can spend three whole days with his Navy in Northern waters.

During the whole visit every ship was under "short notice" and ready to engage the enemy. Aboard the battleship KING GEORGE THE FIFTH the King conferred the honour of Knighthood upon the Commander in Chief, Home Fleet, Admiral Tovey. It was from the bridge of this ship that the Admiral directed the fleet action against the BISMARCK. One of the ~~ex~~-American destroyers, ~~which had advanced~~ ~~at a distance of~~ was visited by the King, who also went aboard another destroyer which had covered over one hundred thousand miles since the outbreak of war. From her Bridge His Majesty took the salute as she steamed through the fleet.

The last Royal command was to signal the fleet to "Splice the Mainbrace", in other words, to serve extra rum rations.

(Cheers from all concerned).

A Naval Review in war-time. Only the British could do it.... who dares dispute that Britannia Ruler the Waves!
