U.S. LAUNCHING

35,000 tons of battleship "The Massachusetts" latest of a string of American dreadnoughts awaits her maiden plunge at Quincy. 70 million dollars worth of speed and power is about to be launched. Navy Secretary Knox is with Mrs. Charles Adams for the christening and there is an audience of 50,000. And now it's Bon Voyage and good luck. Almost before she dips her hull, workmen are laying the keel for the next vessel, the cruiser "Flint". As a nation of hustlers the Americans are certainly hustling now.
