BRAZIL LAUNCHES DESTROYER

There's more than the usual excitement in Rio today, there's going to be a launching. The Republic of Brazil is one of the most go-ahead in South America and the ship laid down last December is the finished craft of today. The M3, a new destroyer, is about to start off her great adventure. President Vargas is in charge of the christening and the vessel is gaily beflagged in honour of the occasion. Bang goes another bottle of the best and with it another battleship. The M3 slips gracefully down the runway while thousands of operatives, women as well as men, bid her bon voyage. She's a worthy daughter of Brazil where the nuts and bolts come from.
