

5-141000
5-541000

MANCHUKUO BORDER DISPUTE

Hands across the border.... It makes a strange picture when Japanese and Russians settle the boundary dispute which has raged since 1921. They are finally establishing the border between Outer Mongolia and Manchukuo. Tokyo hailed this as a step towards peace in Asia, a peace which the Japanese Army violated by one of their well-known "incidents" exactly one week later.

Going further East we see a number of British subjects acting on the advice to leave Japan and be on the safe side. When there is tension in the air, to the British there's no place like home. In their anxiety they still give thought to their pets.

Sailing under the protection of the British flag they leave behind many friends who are not so fortunate.