HIGH COMMAND CHANGED.

The important changes in the High Command of the British Army recently announced, include the appointment of General Sir Alan Brooks (on the right) as Chief of the Imperial General Staff. General Brooks succeeds General Sir John Dill, who is to be Governor of Bombay.

Sir John is seen here with Major-General A.E. Nye who is the New Vice-Chief of the Imperial General Staff. He served in the ranks at the beginning of the last war, and received a commission fourteen months later.

May good fortune attend them all.
