ANOTHER U.S. BATTLESHIP LAUNCHED.

Seventy million dollars worth of battleship ready to join the Navy and see the world. The INDIANA's Christening oration is given by Secretary to the Navy Colonel Knox.

There go the supports from under thirty five thousand tons of steel, and as the INDIANA receives her name, the third ship of its kind to be launched this year glides down the slipways.

The way things are in the Pacific just now, twenty battleships like this are none too many. The present goal will add twelve more. An impressive tonnage which Japan will have to weigh very carefully.
