ASSEMBLING U.S. AIRCRAFT.

America intends to go on sending us planes although her own need now is great. That's splendid you say. But our Ministry of Aircraft Production alone can tell us whether British factories are producing the increased number of planes required to relieve the sudden strain thrown on American aircraft industries. An even bigger speed up both sides of the Atlantic has got to take place. These are bomb racks going into position, on newly assembled American planes fresh out of their packing cases. War planes of every kind come rolling out.

Here's one of the famous flying fortresses.

A Douglas Boston

Glen-Martin Baltimore

Vaught-Sikorsky

Stinson O-49

Pittcairn Autogyro
