AMERICAN CADETS GRADUATE

New leatherneck Lieutenants of the American Navy are about to pass out at Wantico, Virginia. Another important stage in their career has been reached. They receive their diplomas from General Holcombe, Commandant of the United States Marine Corps. General Holcombe congratulates them on their success and gives them an inspiring message from the President.

Wantico has some very high standards to live up to and these are the young men who are going to bear its banner proudly in the Marine Corps. The men take the oath by raising their hands. Good luck fellers.
