

COMRADES FROM U.S.A.

From Cape Town come pictures of some of Uncle Sam's sailors making the most of a spot of shore leave.

A welcomed opportunity to see some of the sights of the Mother City of South Africa and paint the town Navy Blue.

U.S. Army doughboys are also getting a first hand glimpse of a new country. With a natural flair for hunting out the historic, they find much to interest them one way and another. This is one way, and here's the other; a hostess to escort them around the sights of Table Mountain.

Boarding the mountain cableway, they're soon taking the trip to the top of one of nature's skyscrapers.

Quite a hair-raising experience. It "makes yer think".

Look the place over sailors; Cape Town's a City to write home about.
