

BALTIMORE BOMBERS.

First pictures of another type of American aircraft doing good service in the Middle East - - Baltimore Bombers.

Members of a peace-time squadron of the South African Air Force fly these formidable machines. Their motto is "Wings defend Africa", and they are certainly handing out some headaches for the Hun.

Our cameraman was allowed to take the place of an air-gunner to get these pictures; just another of those exciting and dangerous jobs of the newsreel man.

In the course of this flight there came a grand opportunity for a pot-shot or two at a sitting target, a newly crashed Heinkel.

The Baltimores are doing their share, and we take off our hats to the "men with wings" who fly them!