MORE GERMAN PRISONERS FROM THE MIDDLE EAST.

Ships arrive at a South African port bringing further cargoes of German prisoners of war captured in the North Africa campaign. This is a batch of four thousand of Hitler's misguided followers. They are brought from the ships in which they arrived by tugs and lighters to the vessel waiting to take them to the end of their journey. Among this crowd are a couple of Nazi Generals whom the Allies have taken off the German active list.

On the way to this port five prisoners tried to escape but failed - We don't know where these men are going, but wherever it is, there are another four thousand Nazis out of the war.
