FARM HORSE SHOW

They're all dressed up with somewhere to go at Hexham today. The farm horse show and you've never seen such a to-do. Horses and foals ready for inspection by the judges, and they will have to hurry or they will be all behind. There are sixteen classes and two hundred entries. Who said a foal and his mummy were soon parted. Now's the great moment of the parade. Some of the horses shaggy fetlocks look as though they're wearing spats. That's the spirit, young Micky has just sensed that Mum isn't there, and why the heck. All these fine beasts hooved it to the show to save motor transport and many come from the finest breeders in the country. These may be the days of honk-honk, but you can't mass produce a horse horse. Is there a finer sight than a well groomed steed. Yes the horse is still in the running and the kind of horse is seen in these perfect specimens. They're all winners and they have won in a good cause the Agricultural Red Cross Fund. Hail to the horse.
