THE NAME OF MACROBERT LIVES ON.

The Air Officer Commanding in Egypt. Air Vice Marshal McClaughry arrives by plane at a Middle East Aerodrome to present an R.A.F. Squadron with four famous Hurricanes. The distinguished flying name of MacRobert returns to the squadron to which, up to his death, Sir Roderick, second son of Lady MacRobert was attached. It is now that we see the names of the three brave knights emblazoned on the machines given in perpetuation of their memory.

"The Lady" the fourth machine will fly alongside the three Hurricanes given by Lady MacRobert with the same high ideal as was the bomber "MACROBERT'S REPLY". Air Vice Marshal McClaughry said "It should be the aim of all of us to show a spirit and courage like that of Lady MacRobert." It is beyond words to express the superlative heroism of this bereaved mother who sees the spirit of her sons carrying on the fight.
