CARDINAL HINSLEY AT CAMP

A naval guard of honour greets Cardinal Hinsley when he visits this camp in England. An Officer inspects the Guard and addresses the men. Today they are being singularly honoured by the presence of so eminent a dignitary. The Cardinal now talks to the men. He always has a kindly word for seamen, and today a special word for those who go down to the sea in ships. Cardinal Hinsley blesses the camp and the men in it. His Eminence prays that the hand of divine providence may bring profound satisfaction and the contentment that comes with belief. A memorable day in the annals of the camp, a day not only of blessing but of inspiration.
