Allied Command Meeting in U.S.A.

The Combined Allied Staffs meet in Washington.

Entering are Generals Marshall and Arnold followed by Admiral Leahy who functions as President Roosevelt's personal representative. The British members are led in by General Sir John Dill. An august assembly determining Allied strategy in all matters affecting Anglo-American action in the war.

Across the Council Table the joint Allied Staffs meet to discuss big issues. Generals Marshall and Arnold face General McCready and Air Marshal Eville, while Admirals Leahy and King weigh up the facts in the discussion.

The Allied Military Brains Trust is in session to hammer out problems affecting the conduct of the war.
