BUNA CLEARED OF JAPS.

Generals Blaney and Michelberger, Australian and American Commanders in New Guinea, see for themselves the final two-fisted Allied attack which drove the Japs from Buna, their last stronghold in Papua.

Some of the bitterest fighting of the war preceded the capture of Buna Mission, long since reduced to rubble. Our men found so many enemy dead that they were buried in a common grave. The war torn Jungle of New Guinea has provided this global war with its most arduous battle ground.
