GOLD COAST FISHERFOLK

A slice of life from Accra, surf port on the Gold Coast of Africa. One of its principal industries is fishing, an occupation that keeps whole communities busy all the year round, men and women. Yes, and picanny too. The natives bring their long nets ashore after every trip and now they are getting ready to take it to market. The ancient market and bazaar with its arched entrance. Accra is a typical bit of equatorial Africa. Ages have left it unchanged.
