

TITLE.:- TOWN GOES ON HOLIDAY.

Picture.:- This is Regent Street, Swindon, the day before the grand exodus to the coast.

Then up with the lark in the morning, the greater part of the population of the town join some six miles of trains all ready in the sidings to take them on their holidays.

As the trains draw out - who can help wishing them "Good Weather" ?

Now see Regent Street, the same afternoon - like a city of the dead !

And "Robert", guardian of the peace, has only peace to guard !

TITLE.:- A BONNIE LASSIE.

Picture.:- Who says Scotsmen never give anything away ?

Sir Harry Lauder gave away the daughter of an old friend as a bride at Chorlton - and attracted a big crowd.

The famous comedian enjoyed his experience and posed with the happy couple for our cameraman.

He gets a delightful reward "for services rendered"-

Wouldn't you smile ?

TITLE. :-QUICK WORK

Picture.: This is the last time you will ever see this tunnel - for the Railway Company sent down men with explosives and instructions to wipe it out ! Here's how !

Bang ! and tons of bricks and mortar come to Mother Earth.

Another charge and tons more collapse to become debris.

One more, and the job is nearly done. Another shower of brickwork - a final bang and the tunnel is no more.

Well, there it is - or was; and now - All's quiet on the Hattersley front.
