TITLE.:- BOY BRICKLAYERS.

Picture.: This is one of the things usually only taught theoretically, but at Manchester the pupils of the Building Trades School are actually building two houses.

The lads appear to know how to tackle the job of bricklaying.

Doors, window frames and staircases - all are made by the sixteen-to-eighteen-year-old apprentices at the school, and they take great pride in the houses which are growing under their hands.

This young British workman finds it warm work - Good Health !, young man, Good Health ! (? smacking of lips).

TITLE.COWES WEEK.

Picture.:- Cowes presented a not-too-brilliant picture for the race for big yachts.

Here they are jockeying for position at the start.

When the starting gun sent out its message, five famous yachts passed H.M.S. Warspite, the guardship.

A forty-miles per hour gale caused some exciting moments - this is "Cambria" battling with heavy seas.

And here is Westward finishing two minutes ahead of His Majesty's "Britannia"

The gun announces Westward's victory as she passes "Victoria & Albert" from which the King saw the race.

This is "Britannia" which missed its two hundredth win by so bare a margin.

This fine shot is of the giant Cunarder "Mauretania" passing the "Victoria & Albert" outward bound for New York
