TITLE.:- LANSBURY'S LATEST LIDO.

Picture.:- When Mr. Lansbury arrives to open the pool they give him a pair of water wings -- but apparently he doesn't know how to use them.

After one or two ineffectual attempts to inflate them he decides to keep them for a seaside holiday.

At the word "go" -- the little pool receives into its cooling waters some of the swimmers who have eagerly awaited the opening -- and then comes one who makes quite a splash.

Here is Mr. Lansbury with some of the people of Papworth who are grateful to him for providing them with this splendid little bathing pool.

TITLE.:-WHEN THE R.100 CAME HOME.

Picture.:- Here she is approaching the mooring mast at Cardington after having completed the return journey of three thousand three hundred miles from Montreal in fifty seven hours.

Here's how she looked from the top of the mast -- and how the people below appeared.

No difficulty was experienced in mooring the monster -- and she certainly is a monster when looked at like this. As the crowd gazed upward -- at the top of the mast Wing Commander Colmore and Major Scott are greeted by Lord Thomson.

Officers and crew come to earth by lift inside the mast.

The "boys" are now enjoy a smoke for which they've waited fifty seven hours.
