

(2). TITLE.:- THEIR ANNUAL DIP.

Picture.:- Here's a big flock of future mutton which has been rounded up on the Berwyns for their annual bath in arsenic, soft soap and other vermin destroying ingredients. They make a pretty picture as they are driven over the mountainside towards the farms, all unaware that bath-night is here. This dipping adds considerably to the comfort of the sheep.

This picturesque shot shows a few hundred of them approaching the homestead where the dipping is carried out; they are driven into the pens and after their numbers have been checked, dipping is started.

One by one the bleating animals are immersed in the bath and care is taken that the cleansing "dip" soaks thoroughly to the skin.

Here they come -- one after the other -- shaking themselves like dogs out of a pond -- glad that the ordeal is over.

Feeling all nice and clean, like a schoolboy on Saturday night, they are once again freed.

Perhaps one of them is wearing your next winter's underwear. Its a strange thought!

(3). TITLE.:- HER DAYS OF USEFULNESS OVER.

Picture.:- Your next side-board might well have sailed the bounding main as part of this old "wooden wall".

They're breaking her up -- and good old seasoned teak is very useful for furniture and similar purposes.

Between decks -- amongst ghosts of the past.

A shot through a port hole -- whence many another shot sped its way in bygone days.

This splendid old ship was launched in eighteen twenty one and has passed through many vicissitudes in her long life of usefulness. She was present at the blockade of Alexandria.

His Majesty's Ship GANGES finally was paid off only last year.

Her glories departed -- her day is done.
