(8). TITLE:- DUTCH PARLIAMENT OPENED.

Picture.:- It's not often that Royalty opens a "Talkie" House, although perhaps a sound institution might be a better description of the Dutch Parliament which assembles for the opening of the Autumn Session by Her Majesty Queen Wilhelmina.

First to leave the Royal Coach is Prince Henry, the Queen's Consort. Then comes the aged Queen Mother who bows to the Colours of the Guard of Honour. Princess Juliana follows; and finally comes Her Majesty curtsying in salute. The Queen, followed by her mother, her husband and her daughter, then enter the ancient "States General" -- the seat of Parliament -- to once again set in motion the parliamentary machine.

The ceremony in the Baronial Hall does not take long --

--and Her Majesty soon graciously takes her leave, once again paying the customary respect to the colours in passing. All hearts go out to the beloved seventy-two year old Queen Mother as she enters the Golden State Coach.

This scene is rather like that which occurs on the occasion of the opening of our own Parliament in London. There can be little doubt of the loyal affection the Dutch people have for their Rulers --

--for the Royal progress back to the Palace is one long succession of cheers and waving hats and handkerchiefs.
