TITLE.:- AMERICA'S SANDHURST.

Picture.:- These very smart fellows are the American equivalent of the Gentlemen Cadets of -- --our own Sandhurst Military College. They make a very fine sight in their picturesque uniforms.

Whatever they may think of their "jolly old Sergeant Major", he knows his job alright, for --

--the cadets undoubtedly are as smart a body of men as one could wish to see. This particular parade is in honour of a visit from the Fidae, an international war veterans' society, whose members never did better than these West Point men.

If they'd all been wound up with one handle they could not put up a more splendid show of clockwork-like precision.
