(8). TITLE. APARTMENT HOUSE COLLAPSES.

Picture.:- They were excavating for the foundation of another building next door -- when, without warning No. 15 toppled into --

--the hole and became a jumbled mass of bricks and mortar, --

--presenting a jig-saw puzzle to the salvage people, who worked hard --

--in their efforts to save the unfortunate victims who were buried under the mass of debris. Five persons lost their lives --

--and six were badly injured. Only one of the twelve occupants of the building escaped without injury.

Many personal effects of the tenants were very badly damaged, and household gods were smashed to smithereens.

They've arrested the officials of the excavating company.

(9). TITLE.:- STRATFORD-on-AVON MOP FAIR.

Picture.:- Shakespeare wouldn't recognise his "home-town" if he could see and hear it on Mop day.

Overnight "all the fun of the fair" appears in the famous old streets, and gaiety and noise reign supreme around the picturesque ancient buildings.

Whole ox-roasting is a centuries-old custom. As early as eight o'clock in the morning this one is already assuming a nice brown succulent appearance. By half past ten, it's done --

--and the Lady Mayoress carves the first slice--

--declaring the ox to be well and truly roasted.

The aroma was very appetising. What a wonderful thing it will be when we can give you "smellies" in addition to "talkies" !

Then, perhaps, will come "tasties" --though perhaps that's a little too much to hope for !

Ah ! they're here ! Someone's going to get them !
