

(3). TITLE.:- SCHOOL OF THE SEA.

Picture.:- She's a picturesque craft, of a kind seldom --
 --seen in these days, when much of the romance--
 --of the sea has gone for ever.

They're just getting her ready --
 --for her trip to the West Indies,--
 --and everything must be spick and span.

The young crew don't mind work --
 --which is as well, for all kinds of tasks have to be undertaken, on deck --
 --or up aloft. Dizzy heights mean nothing to them. They get right away up there with the greatest of ease,
 --with all the agility of old hands at the game.

There would be an awful bump if one of them fell.
 She's due to sail. Final preparations are being --
 --made and little more remains to be done.

The "Deutschland" is a trim craft destined to be --
 --the home of these boys for many months to come.

They're looking forward to the trip.
 And now for work, and the open seas.
