(1). TITLE.:-RAILWAY ZEPPELIN

Picture.:- It's a strange looking affair. The coach is of steel and aluminium --

--and is driven by a propeller like an aeroplane. She starts up and slowly glides away on her very first test run.

Within a minute she attains over 90 miles an hour --

--running so smoothly that her passengers could write just as --

--comfortably as if she wasn't moving at all.

The test is over an unused stretch of railroad just outside Hanover, and is designed to prove that high speeds --

--can be attained over long distances with safety.

It is claimed that she will do over 115 miles an hour when they can give her a really long run.
