

1333281

(4). TITLE.:- UP THE ALPS BY ROPE-WAY.

Picture.:- Many people, of course, prefer to climb the Alps; but there are also many who prefer to ascend them without expending all the effort necessary to climbing all that way.

Hence the funicular rail-way, which slings one high up in almost less time than it takes to tell.

Some pretty scenery meets the eye on the run up, and one is very sorry when the rope-way descent draws to an end. However, you have to go down again. So you see it all once more.

It gives the thrills of mountaineering without its inconveniences and will be welcomed by many visitors to this part.