

137584-2

(2). TITLE. :- WATER, WATER, EVERYWHERE.

Picture. :- They've been having a very, very wet time in Silesia lately.

Rain has been tumbling down continuously in buckets-full for weeks past,--

--with the result that rivers are swollen, and turned into raging torrents,--

--having the appearance of great areas boiling up under some sinister influence.

Nothing could be done to stem the rushing waters, and--
--a great deal of damage was done over a very wide area.

Roadways became rivers for the time being, while many of the --

--fields became lakes. Water is all very well in its right place,--

--but one doesn't want it around the seats in country lanes.

Boats had to be used to reach some of the marooned people.

Footballers will have to learn water-pole, or play away matches --

--until the floods subside. They're unshaky for a while, anyway.