

(3). TITLE.:- LONDON JACK RETIRES.

Picture.:- He's thirteen years old and deserves a rest. His eyesight is dimmed;

one cruel chap said it was through looking for a sub from a Scot !

His successor is Jack the Second, a bright youngster of eleven months old.

Old Jack's not a bit jealous, he wishes the new collector "Jolly good luck !" in his new job !

Young Jack starts right away and does very well. He may have a pedigree --

--as mixed as a Christmas pudding, but he's got appealing eyes and a persuasive manner.

He's already a big favourite at Waterloo. When the day is done --

--Jack watches his master count the coins he's collected. Naturally he wants to know how much good he has done for the railway charities. See how he wags his "rudder" as the amount totals up ! Good luck, Jack ! Keep it up !
