TITLE.:- WHEN "THE PICTURES" WERE YOUNG.

Picture.:- Here's a bit of film history. This is the first machine to show living pictures, --

--as they were called, in Berlin. In those days it was thought to be little short of miraculous; and even to-day we might be forgiven for thinking it a miracle--

--that people could see the moving pictures it projected,--

--for their entertainment and amusement. It was extremely hard work --

--turning the handle of the projector; a very, very great --

--contrast to the machine of to-day, which shows you dramas costing --

--hundreds of thousands to produce. The old machine was -- --content to show you pictures like this, all flicker and fuziness. Yes, that's how they dressed in those days. Thank goodness for progress in --

--fashions, as well as most of the thousand and one things which go to make up life as we know it in this Year of Grace.
