(8). TITLE.:- NORFOLKS TO NORFOLK.

Picture.:- It is a really happy coincidence that brings the cruiser Norfolk to Devonport, while the 2nd Norfolk Regiment is there. It gives an -- --opportunity of creating a link between the two services. Such scenes as this, have so seldom happened, that the occasion may be looked upon as historic ! The colours of the Regiment are marched into the dockyard, receiving due honours from the guard of marines from the ship. The Norfolks are to present to the ship a silver figure of Britannia, its regimental badge, which is singularly appropriate to this unique occasion.

We are glad to be able to present to you the only film record of this unusual event, for it is quite possible, that never again in our time, will the colours of a British regiment be marched on the deck of a name-sake warship.

Guards of the 2nd Norfolks and H.M.S. Norfolk face each other as the colours are laid reverently below the rostrum, on which --

--stand Captain Fricke and Lieutenant-Colonel Brudenell-Bruce, overlooking a very striking scene which would make a splendid subject for a painting, representing "Friendship and the Fighting Forces".

May the little silver figure of Britannia prove to be a mascot to the ship.
