

1344/1-0

(8).

TITLE.:- WORLD'S FASTEST TRAIN.

Picture.:- Here she goes on the fastest "start to stop" run in the world. As she draws out of Swindon we know that she'll be running into Paddington - over 77 miles away - in little more than an hour's time. That's moving.

The "Flyer" doesn't take long to reach her maximum speed of 72 miles an hour. Wh-oo-op ! She's doing that now ! She needs more water than she can carry, so she picks --

--it up from long troughs beside the track. Oh ! The camera gets a splashing ! - and the cameraman gets the "wind-up". It was a bit close !

She's still passing over the troughs at Goring, scooping up water, without slackening speed. Phew ! That smoke would make you cough !

No less than 150 signals provide for the safe passage of the train on its great run.

Right on time she approaches the end of her journey. Of course, she has to slacken a bit --

--as she runs into Paddington, just in time for tea. Her daily achievement is one of the greatest of railroad romances. Now she has to be overhauled, ready to do it all again to-morrow !