TITLE.:- POWDERHALL PEDESTRIANISM.

Picture.:- Here they come ! It's a thrilling dash, with Tait just a fraction ahead of the favourite. It's a jolly close race, well done, Tait ! He -- --gets a hundred pounds and a gold medal for winning the Sprint.

The field for the Marathon is fortysix, all professionals, out after the championship of Great Britain. They're off ! Come on, boys ! One of you must win !

It's a ten mile grind, with forty-pounds and a trophy at the end of it. So it's worth an effort. Some of those chaps at the tail of the procession seem rather out of the running, --

--but anything might happen in a ten mile race. Over half way, Scally draws clear with Smart close on his heels, and Dawson (last year's winner) running in third place.

There's little change in the later miles, and the tenth tells the -- --crowd that there's no doubt of the result.

Scally wins easily - a fine effort.

So we see Tait, the Sprint winner, congratulating Scally, the Marathon winner, who is now 10-mile champion.
