TITLE:- HELP ! HELP !

Picture:- It's their job to see that nobody gets drowned.

Real live mermaids serve as models for a rescue drill demonstration. Who wouldn't be a rescuer ? The job has its good --

--points. Away go the life guards to the aid of beauty in distress. One can't help wondering if they would be quite as smart, if they hadn't seen who it was they had to save. However, they make short work --

--of the rescue, and lose no time in getting the supposed half --

--drowned damsels ashore. The life guards keep watch over fifty -- --thousand bathers daily in the winter season in this semi-tropical land. The work of resuscitation is a very important --

--part of their training. These young ladies are supposed to have swallowed -- --more of the ocean than is good for them - we're glad they're "only pretending".
