

32222

(19).

TITLE.:- MASS PRODUCTION.

Picture.:- Five thousand hens are here; hard at it turning out busy men's breakfasts at a --

--rate of two thousand a day. ... It's quite a job.--

--to handle so much "fruit of the hen" in bulk. So --

--some clever people evolved this method of dealing with them.

... In their little cubicles, the hens lay their eggs - and, presto ! --

--they disappear, through holes, down on to an endless band which -- --carries them straight along to the packing department, each one representing --

--a whole day's work for a hen! ... It's --

--mass production of shells, (peace-time brand) -, --

--and they're all so "fresh" as to be --

K

--almost impertinent! ... It's a splendid idea ! One night almost --

--be tempted to say "An 'egg-shellent' one" - but that's --

--a stale yo - joke! ... It --

--wouldn't be surprising if they had a --

--lot of casualties - but they don't !

At the end of their --

--journey they are packed straightaway. ... Round --

--eggs in square holes. It's egg-laying --

--by numbers ! What a shame we can't --

X

--show this picture to the hens in our own back gardens !