TITLE.:- THE SEA HE MOVED.

Picture.:- All Portsmouth, and indeed all Britain, mourns the passing of Mr. Wyllie, probably the greatest painter of ships--

--and the sea the world has ever known. That his mortal remains should be sea-borne to their -- --last resting place is a fitting tribute to the memory of the famous artist.

"Nelson" and "Warspite" salute the sad cortege as it passes across Portsmouth --

--Harbour. Later in the five miles journey the cutter is taken in tow. The remains are to --

--lie in the churchyard of Porchester Castle, within a few yards of -- --the sea he knew and loved so well and truly till the end.
