(5). TITLE.:- GERMAN NAVAL REVIEW.

Picture.:- The naval guard of honour salutes --

--Germany's "Grand Old Man" as --

--President Hindenburg goes aboard the cruiser Konigsberg --

--for the grand review of the German Fleet at Kiel. ....

The President is a striking --

--on the deck of the cruiser to receive the "Head of the State".

As the Konigsberg steams out to sea for the review, --

--she passes the training-ship "Niobe", with her crew --

--"manning the yards" in the President's honour.

They are Germany's bluejackets of the future, --

--who have chosen the sea as their home, --

--with the prospect of, one day, becoming members --

--of the crew of modern craft such as this. ....

Every unit of the sea force comes under the eye --

--of the President of the Republic. .... Ships of the line, --

--including cruisers, torpedo-boats and minesweepers - all take their part --

--in the biggest naval review since the old regime. ....

A very striking demonstration of a really wonderful revival.

At the conclusion of the review, the "Grand Old Man" --

--takes his departure from Kiel railway station. ....

At his age most men wouldn't want to go beyond an arm chair and carpet slippers, --

--but what could one do in the face of such affection as this ?
