TITLE.:- TO LOST MILLIONS.

Picture.:- Thirteen years after the Great War, the Head of the --

--German State, President Hindenburg, inaugurates, with solemn ceremonial, --

--a memorial to all those who made the great sacrifice --

--in that bitter conflict we would all like to forget.

The memorial, unlike our Cenotaph, is not in the --

--open, and, certainly, --

--it is more simple in design.

Just a solid cube of stone - severe, but expressive !...

After the inauguration, the President takes the salute of the -- --troops as they march past - with --

--the celebrated "goose-step". Most of these young fellows were -- --too young to be under arms at the time of the -- --Great War. May they never experience --

--anything like it ! Naval detachments are in the parade --

--in honour of that mighty "legion of the lost", the -- --dead millions of our one-time enemy !
