TITLE:- THOSE KIDS.

Picture:- They call them "pop tents", the idea being that the kids can "pop in" out of the heat of the sun.
A wise precaution for these delicate little things who would otherwise suffer from sunstroke !

That's why they get these little bungalows for two !

Sometimes it's a bit of a tight squeeze, but they're good friends !

There are about 800 kids in the herd, not one of -- --them being more than three weeks old. Meal times --

--usually mean a grand stampede with the hindmost, more than likely going hungry.

Kids are kids all the world over, they'll start some fun if they --

--are left to themselves for long enough.

And how they enjoy a scamper over the wide open spaces !...
They're like most other sorts of kids, they stick together !...
They enjoy themselves - but, of course, they're too young to know --

--that they'll be goats some day ! The last ones have a longer run for their drink ! The best kid --

--pictures I've seen - and---there's...no...kid...about...that..
