TITLE:- CZECHO-SLOVAKIAN DERBY.

Picture:- Most of the countries of the world have adopted the name "Derby" for their biggest horse-races. ....
Czecho-Slovakia is no exception. .... To-day's the day, and the enormous crowds on the fine course at Prague are awaiting the big event with eager anticipation. ....
They do things --

--rather differently here, for the owners assemble to present their horses to the President, --

--as they gallop away to the distant starting post. ....
This done --

--President Masaryk makes his way through a big and excited crowd to the grand stand. .... Immediately behind the President is the Premier - also an enthusiastic follower of racing. .... They are all --

--keen on the "Sport of Kings, although they're republicans...

And now for the race. ....

Away go a dozen beauties, stretching themselves in grand style, going all out for fame and fortune.

Oskar's there !

His lady-owner is proud of him, and no --

--wonder, for in addition to the glory - there's a nice fat cheque for her !
