TITLE.:- A FLYING VISIT.

Picture.:- The Prince having flown from Windsor, arrives at Eastbourne, where using his own words, he has "a very crowded day".

This is his first visit to the famous resort where a Royal welcome accompanies him to the Town Hall.

BRING UP MILITARY BAND RECORD UNTIL THE INSPECTION.

After inspecting the guard of honour he continues his drive round the town.

Now at the Fisher's Arch which has been made from lifebelts, fishing nets, anchors and old boats, where he greets the fishermen.

Thousands of school children saw His Royal Highness drive along Marine Parade.

After unveiling a tablet at Devonshire Park, commemorating the purchase by the corporation of both the floral hall and the Pavilion, the Prince passes through to --

--the grounds where he reviews a British Legion parade of men from the Old Contemptibles, St. John's Ambulance and Queen Mary's Auxiliary Corps, and many old Comrades Associations. Eastbourne realizes that a great honour has been paid to it by this Royal favour. These sections of its activities show their appreciation of his visit by giving him three deafening cheers.
